Educational roundtable to discuss Texas school finance

The Greater Austin Chamber and IBM are pleased to present "More Money for Education—or More Education For Our Money?", a quarterly education roundtable Friday morning at St. Edwards University Jones Auditorium. The event, from 8:15 to 10:15 a.m., will feature special guests Rob Mosbacher, Chairman, Greater Houston Partnership; Bill Hammond, President & CEO, Texas Association of Business, and Chris Patterson, Director of Research, Texas Public Policy Foundation.

Jones Auditorium is located at 3001 South Congress Avenue.

This roundtable will help those interested become more educated about the $35 billion Texas school system and answer the following questions:

In the race to fix school finance will the courts beat the legislature to the punch—again?

Is there really a problem with public school finance in Texas, or is this just "smoke and mirrors?"

What are the real viable solutions that will improve our public schools?

Is this debate about students, or taxes?
