

Vim Head is currently the CEO of multiple surgical care facilities and real estate companies in Houston, Texas. His work ethic was founded early in his childhood while working in his parents' jewelry store. By the time he was in junior high, he and his brothers were successfully running KVK Entertainment and providing DJ services in and around his hometown of Bay City, Texas. While obtaining his degrees in finance and economics at Southwest Texas State University, he also worked in Austin at the Comptroller's Office and continued to develop an entrepreneurial spirit. That spirit continues to guide him today, and he has started dozens of businesses in the surgical center field and in real estate. Vim is passionate about the next generation and believes that we must introduce them to first to God and focus them on genuine policy discussion through the Liberty Leadership

Council. Over the years, Vim has served on multiple boards and in many roles related to healthcare policy, adoption, orphan care, classical Christian education, church construction and CEO ministry. Vim's greatest blessings are his wife, Sarah, and their three boys, William, Vim II, and Paxton.
