

Stacy Hock is a leader in investment, philanthropy, and public policy with a deep commitment to education. She chairs the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board and serves on the boards of Atlas Energy Solutions (AESI), the American Federation of Children, and the Texas Public Policy Foundation. She is also a member of the Blanton Museum of Art Board, UATX Advisory Board and the University of Texas at Austin's School of Civic Leadership Advisory Board. Ms. Hock holds a B.S. in Computer Science and Electrical Engineering from MIT and an M.B.A. from the University of Texas at Austin. She and her husband, Joel, are raising their four sons in Austin, Texas.