

Charles Gardner
Senior Research Fellow
Mercatus Center at George Mason University

Charles Gardner is a senior research fellow at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University. His research focuses on planning law and housing affordability.

He has testified before several state legislatures and frequently advises local government officials on zoning matters. He has also served as a local elected official and as an active participant in state policymaking. He received his JD from Vanderbilt University Law School.