

Chris Gober is the Republican nominee for Texas's 10th Congressional District. A 7th-generation Texan, Gober was born and raised in the rural Texas towns of Throckmorton and Graham, where he learned early the values of faith, family, and hard work that continue to guide his life and service today.

Gober is a member of the Texas A&M University Class of 2001, where he earned a Bachelor of Business Administration. He went on to earn his law degree from Harvard Law School in 2004.

After law school, Gober served at the U.S. Department of Justice as Counsel in the Office of Legal Policy, working on national security and border security issues. He was part of the team that prepared Chief Justice John Roberts and Justice Samuel Alito for their U.S. Supreme Court confirmation hearings. He later served as General Counsel to the National Republican Senatorial Committee, Deputy Counsel to the Republican National Committee, and General Counsel to the Republican Party of Texas.

Gober returned to Texas and founded Lex Politica, a national law firm focused on constitutional, election, and regulatory law, where he serves as Founding Partner and CEO. Over more than two decades of practice, he has represented candidates, elected officials, organizations, and businesses in high-profile legal matters, including a successful U.S. Supreme Court challenge to a provision of the Federal Election Campaign Act. During the 2024 election cycle, Gober served as director and chief lawyer of America PAC, the political action committee founded by Elon Musk.

Gober is running for Congress to serve the people of TX-10 and to bring practical, results-focused leadership to Washington on the issues that matter to Central Texas families, communities, and businesses.
